Q. 6 Read the following passage and answer the questions appended to it:

The great advantage of early rising is the good start it gives us in our day's work. The early riser has done a large amount of hard work before other men have got out of bed. In the early morning the air is fresh and there are few sounds of distraction so that work done at that time is generally well done. In many cases the early riser also finds time to take some exercise in the fresh morning air and this exercise supplies him with a fund of energy that will last until the evening. By beginning so early he knows that he has plenty of time to do thoroughly all the work he can be expected to do and is not tempted to hurry over any part of it. He gets to sleep several hours before midnight, at the time when sleep is most refreshing and, after a night's sound rest, rises next morning in good health and spirits, for the labours of the new day.

Questions:

- (i) Why is the work of an early riser generally well done?
- (ii) How does it become possible for him to rise in good health?
